

Call for applications in the CORA coaching program: Coaching Women for Research and Academia

Dear all,

for excellent women researchers and future managers it is essential to start planning a career early and strategically. For this reason the University of Freiburg offers the coaching program CORA Coaching Women for Research and Academia for ten female researchers at the end of the doctoral process. The aim of the program is a long-term rise in the proportion of women on the academic qualifications ladder after their doctorates.

The program is intended for female researchers at the University of Freiburg who have submitted their thesis, female postdocs, assistant professors, and group leaders from all faculties. A requirement for participation is the intention of qualifying for a responsible position in academia.

The CORA coaching program foresees individual coaching of up to eight sessions per participant as well as exclusive training sessions to complement the University's existing advanced training courses, motivation via regular meetings of the peer group, and the building-up of a network of women researchers.
